

A professional 1-day course by Steve Jarvis, for pilot trainers & examiners

Course Overview

Brand-new course aimed at providing new knowledge helpful to trainers and examiners in deeper evidential assessments of root causes around pilot performance.

Steve Jarvis has brought together several critical new themes from his recent deep scientific industry-based research in pilot performance, including compelling and surprising examples.

Delegates will learn about new emerging issues, particularly around pilot awareness, monitoring and task prioritisation, much which is presently unknown.

Facilitator – Steve Jarvis

Steve is a well-known educator, but also practices full-time at the cutting-edge of aviation human science (including three projects for HeliOffshore). Processes supported by his work are in use on aircraft across the world. Candidates will enjoy the interactive and unconventional approach, being practically applicable, engaging and even entertaining.
